Premier Declares Egypt Entry Into Gaza Area Opposed

JERUSALEM (A)-Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion told the Israeli Parliament today that his government reserves its "freedom of action" if the Egyptians return to the Gaza Strip.

It was Ben-Gurion's first comment since Egypt announced it was resuming control of the disputed Mediterranean coastal area. The tough old Israeli leader who ordered Israel's blitz invasion of Egypt last October warned that "the time comes when action is appropriate and necessary, the Israel government will not, of course, give prior notice of its ac-

Jet Airliner Noise Likened To Big Truck

Tests At Baltimore Airport Show 707 Disturbed But Few

BALTIMORE (A) - Unofficial sound measurements of America's first jet airliner-the Boeing 707yesterday showed it not much isier than some big tractorrailer trucks which rumble rough the city.

It was only slightly noiser on takeoff than a conventional airliner, the 4-engine Constellation. The noise measuring tests were made by the Baltimore News-Post and engineer James B. Rudden of Baltimore's Traffic Engineering Department.

Matter Of Concern

PRESIDENT Eisenhower's health is a matter of intense concern to 170 million Americans and many millions more beyond these shores. Right now it is not good, and every possible effort needs to be made to restore it without further painful and damaging delay. He can't shake off the racking cough he developed on inauguration day, and it's wearing him down generally. And with Vice President Nixon and Secretary of State Dulles out of the country, he has felt he can't leave the firing line to get badly needed rest. But it is hoped he will be able to go south on Friday. The millions who have a deep personal affection for the President and who understand his importance to free mankind want him freed of further distress and danger-no matter what arrangements are required to achieve that end.

HIS DOCTORS call the ailment tracheitis-inflammation of a section of the windpipe below the voice box. There appears some question as to the cause - whether virus or bacterial. Surely exhaustive tests are demanded to determine the fact. Rest is deemed the only effective cure, and that seems to mean chiefly freedom from the necessity of constant talking-the inevitable burden of a busy executive. Agreement doesn't exist on whether Mr. Eisenhower ought to get out of Washington into a warmer climate. Some say the dry southwest wouldn't help. But if any real conviction is had that he should seek a sunny spot, he should go there without delay. If that means bringing Nixon and Dulles home on the earliest flights available, let it be done. Africa and Australia will keep.

THE PRESIDENT has managed the government from vacation points before, and it can be managed again. Every lawmaker or official having business with him can go to him wherever he is. Recent evidence that some lawmakers testily refused to fly to his Georgia headquarters but insisted he return to Washington hardly can sit well with the American people. Mr. Eisenhower did not undertake a second term under false pretenses. He made plain he would need more relaxation, more care from his doctors, more time away from Washington. Knowing that, some 35 million Americans voted to send him to the White House for four more years. An American president, the world's most overburdened man, should not have to apologize for trying to preserve his health. He should not have to jeopardize it to silence his critics. The people Ike represents across the world want him in full health and vigor.

Aid For Poland

THE VERY FACT that Poland must turn to the United States for aid after more than 10 years of Stalinist-Communist rule is more eloquent than a ton of pointed speeches and propaganda. The Stalinist rule of Poland left that country impoverished and with its economy almost wrecked. The Polish people rose up against their Stalinist exploiters, and they have gone as far at they dared, short of Hungary. The desire of the Polish people is known to us: they want to be free and sovereign, they want to pull out of their misery, and they want more contact with the West. The question of aid to Poland should be regarded with these facts in mind. We will make mistakes against our own interest if we cling to a rigid and emotionally antipathetic attitude about aid to Poland. To give this aid is a good calculated risk. It will be helpful to the people of Poland—only a few of whom are Communists-in their desire to rise somewhat out of the drabness and misery which is their inheritance from Stalinism. Poland has taken steps toward freedom. It will take every further step that it dares take. Economic aid which will help get a little more food into the mouths of the Polish people and which will also assist Poland in re-shifting its economy away from the Russian-Stalinist pattern of developing heavy industry for Russian benefit and at the expense of the Polish people themselves—this is decidedly worth serious consideration. Here is a calculated risk which America ought

After You, My Dear Friend Alphonse

WASHINGTON-We are watching a most amusing Alphonse and Gaston political shuffle between President Eisenhower and the Democratic leadership of Congress over the $72.8 billion budget. Each is deploring the size of the Eisenhower budget. Each, with a bow to the other, is suggesting that the other cut it. Each knows that budget-cutting is bound to make enemies among those affected by the cuts.

Each also recognizes another hard fact of economics-which is that our current prosperity owes much to the billions the government is pouring into our productive machine. That spending contributes, as well, to inflation and rising prices.

The Alphonse and Gaston demonstration started with the President. For the first time since the 1921 Budget Act, which gave the Chief Executive initiative in budget-making, a President of the U. S. has submitted a budget which he admitted, simultaneously, was too big, and then tried to shift upon Congress responsibility for cutting it. That's a new

It looked like trying to eat your cake and have it, too.

WE SAW THE second act of the Gaston and Alphonse show this past week when the President trotted out a new trick. This was his suggestion that some of the "programs" of government be slowed down. That is a variation on the suggestion of Secretarp of Treasury Humphrey, who seems to be most embarrassed by the whopping budget, that the "programs" be revised. Some, but not the President, thought he meant abandoning some pro-

But what "programs" shall be slowed down or abandoned?

Anybody who waited breathlessly at the President's last news conference for him to specify the "programs" to be slowed down-and nobody was seen in breath-holding discomfortwould have been most naive.

The President promptly revealed how vague he is about the whole business. After insisting that the government must, to the extent of its ability, cut back, he added: "Now, there may be here and there some program that doesn't occur to my mind right now, that might be abandoned. But I think what the Secretary (Humphrey) meant is the slowing up and not taking them with the same speed that we were considering.

EARLIER, after giving his prescription about slowing down programs, the President had said: "Now, for every purpose that was provided for in the budget, I still am in favor. In other words, I don't believe in abandoning projects that the United States requires for its own welfare and good, the good of its

The Democratic party's leader in the Senate-Lyndon Johnson of Texas-was quick to exploit Humphrey. this fogginess at the White House.

Speaking somewhat unctuously, as Democrats now do, of the President's budget as "the biggest peacetime budget in his--which it is-Senator Johnson rose in the Senate and asked that the President "specify" where the budget should be cut.

That, the Senator knew, was a perfectly safe challenge. He had no fear that the President will thus put Congress on the spot, for at the same time the President would also put himself

THE PRESIDENT finds himself on the customary two horns of a dilemma. On one side is inflation and rising prices to which, he keeps saying, government spending contributes since goverment competition for goods and services creates a scarcity that itself causes price increases.

This sort of spiral is pinching those on fixed incomes, and they are beginning to mutter, but nothing that could be described as a scream has come from these usually long-suffering souls yet. On the other hand is the certainty that a sharp reduction in government spending would slow down the economy, slacken production, and cause unemployment.

The clamor for economy comes from conservatives, mostly Republicans though some Democrats, including managers of powerful corporate and financial interests.

They want a tax reduction and applaud as their chief spokesman in Congress-the Democrat, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginiaspeaks out in the Senate, as he did again last week, to say that the only way that taxes can be cut is to reduce government expenditures.

In the Eisenhower Administration the closest to the Byrd thinking and philosophy is Secretry

A SHRINKAGE in the economy that would result from any substantial cut in government spending would "shake it out," as the expression goes, and cause some unemployment. Some in the conservative group would not be averse to some unemployment as that would weaken the position of organized labor.

So far President Eisenhower has aligned himself with those who advocate big government spending to create purchasing power widely so that our people can absorb the products of our swiftly accelerating economic system. They would risk the injury that inflation is inflicting on persons of fixed incomes, hoping to hold that down to a minimum. Their slogan is, in effect, that we are a 72-billion dollar country.

Educators Rebuff Air Force Speakers

The U.S. Air Force offers the latest example of this verity. A little over a year ago, some genius in the community relations department dreamed up a brainstorm which became known as "Operation Hometown."

The idea was that Air Force officers and technicians should be sent back to the high schools they were graduated from to give inspirational talks to student

The theme was to be the need for youngsters to stay in school and complete their education. Then they were to be urged to go on to college and get still more education. In this way they would contribute most to their choice spot. Sixty-five were book-scientific and engineering personnel.

It was emphasized that Operation Hometown was not to be a mere recruiting drive. But Air Force generals naturally hoped to reap a late harvest on their ideological planting.

IF MORE HIGH school graduates took more advanced scientific training, there would be more talent for the Air Force to recruit. And there would be more technical brains for aircraft makers to put in their factories and laboratories.

So last year the Air Force lined up 600 of its officers to go back where they came from and say a good word for higher edu-

> The bitter blow was that 78 alumni were refused invitations to speak at their alma maters. And over 400 offers of speakers never received an answer. The educators apparently couldn't have cared less about having their sudents indoctrinated.

> Undaunted, the Air Force came back this year to hit 'em again, but harder. Over 1,500 officers had their cards pulled in a master file screening. They were tabbed for asignment - at government expense - for Operation Hometown speeches, come June commencement week.

THE RESULTS of this carefully planned, mass brain-bombing have so far been an almost cemplete miss. Letter after letter has come back to Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Kinney, chief of A.F. information services, saying that high school principals didn't want their students talked to by armed service officers.

The school officials say that through local draft boards and nearby military post commanders, they're giving their students all the information they need about their military obligations. And they don't want propaganda, thank you.

To a degree, this rebuff is about what Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Nathan F. Twining had been given previously. In a big-hearted gesture, he offered to make Air Force scientists available for part-time teaching where there were faculty vacancies during the teacher shortage. The offer was refused everywhere.

THE REASON given by college, university and high school' officials was that the Air Force scientists weren't trained as educators. And military instruction wasn't wanted.

Reporter's Notebook NEW YORK-Do you know how to tell whether you have "middle-aged spread?"

A woman always seems able to, but a man can't-or else his vanity won't let him. If a friend tells him at lunch, "Joe, you better cut down on the cheesecake, you're getting middle-aged spread," he simply doesn't believe it. At home that night Joe pulls in his stomach until his face gets purple, looks at himself in the mirror, and says, "Not bad,

WASHINGTON-The great Philadelphia mystery, variously entitled "The Filadelphia Fiasco," and "Who Messed Up Mesta?", has maudlin sentimentalists gushing mawkishly. They simper that out of evilhumor came good because it brought Perla and Gwen together. I feel the exact rever about it. I don't know how much you may have read of the historic encounter, but it occur red at the opening of a new hotel in the City of Brotherly Love which-in view of the way that everything was fouled up-I will mercifully not identify. Mrs. Mesta had loaned herself as ostensible hostess, and how they inveigled her into it is a bigger mystery than why. It could not have been for old friendship's sake because the president of the hotel chain kept calling her "Mrs. Mester. Perle didn't invite Gwen, but somebody did, and as they were brought face to face they shook hands, spoke and smiled at each other, which made them unique in that swarm. Few of the others, who were being pushed, pulled, and stomped on, could find anything to smile about. Almost nothing worked out as planned. Perle had tried to lift the thing a bit in class by coaxing three U. S. Senators to mingle with the horde of night club performers, ex-strip teasers, Broadway press agents, broken-down toastmasters, and unidentifiable characters. But the lawmakers were herded like cattle until they were he found an opening. Senators Clinton Anderson and Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, stuck it out, although Anderson had to stand in conspicuous annoyance while a makeshift table was wheeled in for him-and Chavez got a seat only because a fast-moving young woman snatched a reserved sign off a table being held by one of the world's most unfunny comics. Rep. Albert Thomas, of Texas, refused to take it at all. He stomped out of both the party and the hotel-and took a late

But irony struck hardest at John A. Logan, president of the national association of food chains. The printed menu was lucullan, but although the food czar tipped his waiter $5, all that was brought to his table the livelong night was plate after plate of hard rolls.

The only one in the sardined sack who maintained complacency was Gwen Cafritz. She looked as vivacious as Perle Mesta looked stunned. Some idea of Perle's condition may be gained from this: I went up and asked her if she cared to dance. She stared at me numbly and said: "I mustn't. This dress is too expensive."

SENTIMENTALISTS keep telling me I should rejoice because the feud is over. The make me sick. I helped create that feud. I tended and nurtured it. It was my dull day salvation. If it's going to be snatched from me I've got to have a new feud to take its place.

Two that I fancy as replacements for Perle and Gwen are a pair of charming ladies named Mary Ann Floyd and Eleanor Hankins Fort. Does anybody else here have any candidates?

If I can't find new feuding talent here, I'm prepared to import. Ladies, wherever you are, this is the opportunity of a lifetime. Somewhere there must be two of you, yearning to come to our wonderful city, and worthy of picking up the glorious banners ingleriously cast down by Mesdames

Mary Haworth Mail...

Editor's Note: Faithful reader asks why so many women tear husbands apart, magnifying faults.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The them under control. more I read your column, the more I tend to minimize my marital troubles. Your review of really big difficulties sheds light on my small trials and melts them into insignificance.

However, there are some persons who write to you, to magnify a simple fault in their spouse and view it as a catastrophe. Why will women take their husbands and tear them apart? Is it so difficult to see and appreciate their good qualities?

Do these critics expect perfection? If so, they never will be happy, because they themselves aren't perfect, being human - and like attracts like, you

I love my husband in spite of his faults, and I truly think he feels the same about me. Sincerely, - K. Y.

Try To Avoid

Pharisee Air

DEAR K. Y .: An interesting commentary. But may I say, it is entirely possible that your husband's faults aren't very major; and he may be magnanimous in bearing with yours. Thus possibly you don't deserve any special credit for feeling thankfully problem-free, as compared to women who ventilate their difficulties here-large or small, as the case may be.

So take care that you don't slip into a self-righteous, self- satisfied, superior bias, when taking stock of less fortunate creatures -who aren't lucky, or as comfortable in their home life, as

You say in effect that you've grown by reading these discussions; you've acquired insight and perspective, and a way of thinking, that makes your trials manageable.

Well, as a matter of fact, we purposely try to illuminate the general area of human relationships in which the specific problem occurs. We hope by this means to help the individual who writes; and at the same time indicate to others how to get out, or stay out, of similar trouble .-M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We boys (three college students) were arguing recently, as to whether the boy or girl should go first, when entering the row of Please give us your opinion .-

DEAR C. S.: Customary social usage, in finding seats in a crowded theater, is as follows: If there are ushers, the girl precedes the boy down the aisle, on the heels of the usher, to the designated row of seats. There the boy, as host, stands aside to let the girl be seated first.

If there is no ushering staff, the boy would lead the way down the aisle to find seats, and (again) would stand aside to let the girl be seated first.-M. H.

South won with the king and did a little point counting. His problem was to pick up the queen of trumps and the normal play would be to try to drop it. But, East had shown nine points in spades and at least two more points in clubs. With the queen of hearts he would have opened the bidding. Therefore, South laid down the king of hearts, continued with the jack and when West played low he let it ride for a successful finesse. Good play by South but a nice assist by East.

I want to thank the many, many readers who have called attention to my error of Jan. 18. Dummy held the singleton queen of diamonds and declarer aceking-small. He could make his slam by cashing the queen and then discarding two clubs on the ace and king. Dummy should have held a low diamond and East the queen so that only one discard could be taken. Then Larceny Lou's defense would have beaten the hand.

The error is really the fault of the gremlins who exist only to plague bridge writers. One must have put that queen in dummy

Anti-Burglar Radar Sets Introduced

LONDON (INS) - Pity the poor burglar-life is constantly getting more difficult and dangerous for the man with the jimmy. Back in the old days the only thing that kept him from the loot was the policeman's feeble lantern. His jimmy could easily take care of any door or window which came between him and the loot

But then came patent locks, burglar alarms and other protective devices, the telephone and police radio cars.

And now scientists, who can never let well enough alone, are seeking to trap the burglar with British experts have now developed a home radar set which is just the ticket for the nervous householder or poultry farmer.

The price is no more than $700. The set can be linked to an alarm signal which will announce the burglar's stealthy arrival even before he breaks in.

The radar beam covers 100 feet in both length and breadth. There's nothing to show the house or chicken coop is radarequipped so the burglar is certain to be oblivious of the fact that he has been spotted. And the family dog, cat or wandering fowl will not set off false alarms for the home radar set ignores the approach of small creatures. This unique gadget was originally devised for use in the Mau Mau country of Kenya as a precaution against surprise attacks from terrorist raiders.

Today it is acquiring a new role as a burglar-detector. Britain's National Gallery recently had one of the sets on loan to help protect the nation's investment in art.

Old Germans Seek Title In Clash Tonight

Old Germans can make a clean sweep of the split-season race in the City Basketball League tonight by taking Peskin's Shoe Store across in the clash on the Carver gym.

The Hermans, who won the first-half title in a special playoff with Peskin's, are undefeated in seven starts for the last half with only three contests remaining. Peskin's, in second place, has lost two games. The teams play 10 contests each half.

One other game is carded tonight with Knights of Columbus and Old Exports meeting at 7 o'clock with the Old Germans-Peskin's fray to follow at 8:30.

The Caseys put their record even for eight starts last night with a 65-55 victory over 40 & 8 Club at Fort Hill. Center Don Madden found the range for 27 points on 10 field goals and seven free throws. George Geatz flipped in 17 markers for runnerup

The Knights, who had only a 28-26 edge at the half, poured in 22 points in the third stanza to pull away. Bill Kenney's 20 tallies and Dave Ritter's 10 were high for the losers. The defeat was the sixth in eight attemps tors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloat or gripe

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be remoistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge. HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
